Concept: cycle of life

To “exist” in such a large space without being crushed by the strong presence of the building and the large opening on the surroundings, it seems important to propose a project that considers and integrates into the landscape. By being part of the whole, it is possible to create a dynamic link between landscape elements and thus confer the roundabout a real presence, a strong image and a central position.

For the geriatric hospital and relying on the round shape of the roundabout, I propose an installation in connection with the life cycle and its three ages (children, adults, elderly). Inserted in a green simple setting, (and himself harmoniously integrated in the landscaped setting), three giant “silhouettes” mirrored on one side and in Cortem steel on the other side will punctuate the circular space.

The goal is to create a work that integrates not only the landscape context but follows the seasons, changes according to it is day or night and grows with the years: it is a living project !
