Alice Baillaud, born in France, is a visual artist and landscape architect, trained at the École Nationale Supérieure de Paysage de Versailles (2000). She has lived in Berlin for the last three years, and works there as well as throughout France. She has completed additional studies in science (Graduate degree in Biology, University of Lyon) and in the performing arts (Drama school École Florent, Paris).

Alice Baillaud uses pens, ink, razor blades, and saws to develop a unique communication medium: at the same time a window to inner worlds, and a bridge between people. Alice treads the path between the intimate and generic, known and unknown, the finite and the infinite. The staging of light, shadow, reflections, and transparency works consistently towards a fragile and theatrical vision.

Born in 1975 in France. Benjamin Baillaud, September 2013.
